Hazardous Weather

More severe storms will be possible today and tonight. Initially over the higher terrain this afternoon, storms will be capable of large hail, damaging winds, locally heavy rainfall and possibly a tornado or two. Then tonight, a complex of storms is expected to move south into the Permian Basin and Western Low Rolling Plains with large hail, damaging winds, more widespread heavy rainfall the main threats. A Flash Flood Watch has been issued for the Western Low Rolling Plains, and northern and eastern Permian Basin tonight and Saturday morning.

A cold front moving into the region will combine with an upper level disturbance to create widespread showers and thunderstorms this evening and overnight. A strong amount of moisture already present in the atmosphere will create the potential for very heavy rainfall over a large area.

Hazardous Weather

Major flooding occurred overnight across parts of the DFW Metroplex as 3 to 7 inches of rain fell. Multiple roads are closed or impassible and numerous high water rescues have occurred. Travel may be difficult or impossible in yellow, orange, and red shaded areas this morning. Do not drive through flooded roads. Turn around, don't drown!
